Regents name facilities

Board also hears report, fills posts and changes titles of academic areas

Naming eight new physical facilities and renaming four others highlighted Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Regents.

In other action the board received a report on the executive committee, changed the names of three academic areas and filled two faculty positions.

Following are the facility names which were announced Tuesday.

The fine arts center to be constructed on the site of the old football field will be named the Ivan Wilson Center for Fine Arts. Wilson served at Western from 1920 until his retirement in 1958 and for 25 years was head of the art department.

A graduate center under construction will be named the Raymond Cravens Graduate Center in honor of the dean of the faculties and vice president for academic affairs.

The university center under construction will be named the Dero Downing University Center. Downing is dean of business affairs and vice president for administrative affairs.

The name of Regents Hall was changed to Bates-Runner Hall in honor of Georgia Bates and Etta Runner. Miss Bates is secretary to the board of regents and Miss Runner formerly served in that capacity.

State Hall was renamed W. R. McCormack Hall. Dr. McCormack is a member of the board of regents.

Terrace Hall was redesignated J. T. Gilbert Hall. Dr. Gilbert also is a member of the board.

White Stone Hall will be renamed Florence Schneider Hall. Miss Schneider served at Western for 48 years--longer than any other individual--and worked with all three presidents of the university in business administration areas.

A new baseball field will be named the Nick Denes Field. Denes is a former football coach and currently a member of the Department of Physical Education, Health and Recreation.

The educational television wing of the newly completed Academic was named the Robert Cochran Wing. Cochran is dean of public affairs and has served Western since 1948.

The hospital wing of the complex was named the L. Y. Lancaster Hospital Clinic. Dr. Lancaster is considered the "father" of the University's pre-medical program.

The home economics and nursing wing of the complex was named the E. H. Canon Wing. Canon served as registrar from 1925 until his retirement in 1959.

The theater in the center for fine arts was named the Miller theater in honor of Dr. Russell Miller, a drama and speech specialist who died last year.

In a brief report to the bull board, the three-man executive committee of the regents said "No specific date has been set relative to final action concerning the appointment of a new president."

Serving as members of the regents' committee named to head a search for a new president are Douglas Keen, a Scottsville attorney, Dr. McCormack and Dr. Gilbert, both Bowling Green physicians.

The committee will meet July 16 with an alumni advisory committee and a faculty advisory committee to discuss the selection of a successor to Thompson.

A similar meeting already has been held between the committee and a student advisory committee.

The next regents meeting was set for Aug. 22, and another has been called for mid-September by Thompson. He will leave the president's post after Sept. 15, just before the beginning of a new school year.

Also the graduate school was renamed Graduate College; the community college was designated the Bowling Green Community College and the Department of Home Economics was changed to the Department of Home Economics and Family Living.

The regents named Dr. William A. Floyd interim head of the Department of Home Economics and Family Living. And named Dr. Frank Steel active director of freshman English.
